

RETURN TO BLOG

(HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/BLOG/)

WHITE PEOPLE BEHAVING BADLY AND ANCIENT GIANTS

Thursday, February 6, 2014

WRITE
COMMENT

By Teresa A. Panther-Yates

What if there once really were giants? We are familiar with tales of giants in fairy tales, like those in Jack and the Bean Stalk, or in tall-tales in movies like Big Fish. Giants are also mentioned in the Bible in several places: "There were giants in those days" (Genesis 6:4). They have become part of our popular culture. But now that we have grown up, we no longer believe in giants. We no longer believe they could have ever existed, just as we no longer believe in the existence of Cinderella or Santa Claus.

What if we are wrong? According to the author of a new book on the subject of giant humanoids in Earth's past, "We live in an age where we are hypnotized by our own ignorance." The book is titled The Ancient Giants Who Ruled America: The Missing Skeletons and the Great Smithsonian Cover-Up, and the author is Richard J. Dewhurst. It appeared last month from Bear & Company, a Rochester, Vermont publisher.

Spoiler alert: if you swallow without reflection what the U.S. Government and the American public education system tell you about Native Americans, you won't like this book. You will probably throw it down in disgust and go on Wikipedia to be reassured that giants don't exist. Similarly, if you think it is an act akin to madness to suggest that not only was there a race of eight-foot-tall people who dominated North America from as early as 20,000 BCE but also they were superior to white Europeans in strength, intelligence, health, diet, family life, government, religion and the arts, stop right here and read no farther. It goes against all right-thinking Darwinists, doesn't it?

The Cherokee called them the Moon People. The Utes and Paiutes spoke of a hideous race of cannibals ten feet tall living in caves. And the Choctaw also have an account of the race of giants that first colonized the Ohio Valley. Ancient oral history predates our modern history textbooks. It was important to relay information down, as in any culture, so it was not always storytelling. Could there have been giants? If so, could they have been Denisovan Hybrids and ancient cousins on our family tree? This is but conjecture. There is no conclusive evidence of the size of the Denisovans since thus far we only have a finger bone, two teeth, and a toe bone (Anne Gibbons Science Magazine article, "Genome Brings Ancient Girl to Life.").

Even if there were giants, we don't know who they were or the rest of the story. We only have clues. But if they were an ancient human or human cousin at some point there must have been some hot hanky- panky and some bizarre rendezvous as some have suggested ancient humans had with Denisovans, like Ileana Llorens does in her Huffington Post article, "Denisovans Mated with Humans." If that is the case, some of us might have the ancestry of giants, or as the Cherokee called them, the Moon People.

According to Cherokee and Choctaw traditions and confirmed by excavations of bones in Tennessee, there was a "race of white giants" that once inhabited Tennessee, and "with whom their ancestors fought when they arrived in Mississippi in their migration from the west, doubtless Old Mexico." Their tradition tells of the Nahullo (a race of giants who were wizards of amazing stature). This was considered to be but a "foolish fable, the creature of a wild imagination" but ... "their exhumed bones again prove the truth of the Choctaws' tradition." (Donald N. Yates, Old World Roots of the Cherokee, p. 150).

Where did they find bones of the Moon People? Cushman, an Indian historian in his early work, History of the Choctaw, Chickasaw, and Cherokee Indians, (1898), recounts the discovery in 1880 at a burial mound site near Plano, Texas, of human bones "of enormous size . . . the femoral bones being five inches longer than the ordinary length, and the jaw bones . . . so large as to slip over the face of a man with ease." Cushman goes on to identify them with the older occupants of North America called Allegewi or Taligewi (Talegans). Many historians, moreover, speculate they were the builders of the Adena mounds.

According to Rolling Thunder, a story was told by the Comanches in 1857 about the Moon people:

Innumerable moons ago, there was a race of white men, ten feet high, and far more rich and powerful than any white people now living, who inhabited a large range of country, extending from the rising to the setting sun. Their fortifications crowned the summits of the mountains, protecting their populous cities situated in the intervening valleys. They excelled every other nation which was flourished, either before or since, in all manner of cunning handicraft—were brave and warlike—ruling over the land they had wrested from its ancient possessors with a high and haughty hand. Compared with them the palefaces of the present day were pygmies, in both art and arms. They drove the Indians from their homes, putting them to the sword, and occupying the valleys in which their fathers had dwelt before them since the world began. At length, in the height of their power and glory, when they remembered justice and mercy no more and became proud and lifted up, the Great Spirit descended from above, sweeping them with fire and deluge from the face of the earth. The mounds we [i.e. the speaker Chief Rolling Thunder and his Spanish listener] had seen on the tablelands were the remnants of their fortresses, and the crumbling ruins that surrounded us all that remained of a mighty city.

Could the words Nahoolo or Nahullo be a reference to these Moon people? The word Nahoolo or Nahullo "is now emphatically applied to the white race and no other . . . The Nahullo were of white complexion, according to Choctaw tradition, and were still an existing people at the time of the advent of the Choctaws to Mississippi," concludes Cushman (153). And the Indian trader and historian, James Adair, often makes a reference to the Nahoolo or Nahullo in his History of the American Indians (1775).

There are other accounts of giants in this country and elsewhere. Fritz Zimmerman's book, The Nephilim Chronicles, reproduces over 300 historical accounts of giant skeletons. Many are associated with the earliest mound sites in America, but Zimmerman's survey of this worldwide phenomenon ranges from the Hunter-Fisher People of northeast Europe and Red Paint People whose movements were circumpolar to the giants of the Bible, noted by the Babylonian Talmud as having double rows of teeth, and "Giants' Remains in the British Isles." And Navajo legends speak of the Starnake People, a regal race of white giants endowed with mining technology who dominated the West, enslaved lesser tribes and had strongholds all through the Americas. They were either extinguished or "went back to the heavens." The name may be a corruption of the Biblical race known as Anakim (Num. 13:33, Deut. 1:28).

The name Og (Hebrew "chief") appears to be characteristic (see Zimmerman, pp. 188-91). The ogham alphabet is attributed to this cultural founder. Certainly, if these Moon people existed, they did not live peacefully with their neighbors. Many of the mound sites uncovered in the nineteenth century tell a story of constant warfare by incoming Asiatic tribes against the giants occupying the land. One grisly scene showed thousands of skeletons, male, female and young heaped in a mass grave, with warriors' skulls pierced by arrows. It would appear that as these aboriginal inhabitants of the Ohio Valley were gradually displaced, some members of their society went over into the ranks of the new conquerors, bequeathing a strain of great stature still noticeable, for instance, in the Mobilian chief Tuscaloosa and DeSoto's Indian queen Cofitachiqui, both of whom were said to be seven feet tall.

When Denisovan Man was first discovered, we had just a fingerbone to go on. We can only imagine the look of the skull. Geneticists conjecture an Austronesian type. Will a geneticist in the future derive ancient DNA from the bones of a giant? According to reliable investigative sources, there are thousands of full skeletons available at the Smithsonian, Carnegie Institute and other repositories, who have routinely swept the subject under the carpet for 150 years.

Perhaps at some point, DNA testing companies will have a test to see if you have Moon people in your ancestry. Not yet. But I do have some very tall Tennesseans in my ancestry.

RECENT POSTS

- MYSTERY HERITAGE: ANDREA LOUISE MARTIN IS AN ACTRESS, SINGER, AUTHOR AND COMEDIAN (HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/MYSTERY-

HERITAGE-ANDREA-LOUISE-MARTIN-ACTRESS-SINGER-AUTHOR-COMEDIAN/)

- ▶ SLAYING THE DRAGONS OF GENETIC DOGMA
(HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/SLAYING-DRAGONS-GENETIC-DOGMA/)
- ▶ TUCSON ARTIFACTS' STORY VERIFIED BY ARCHEOLOGY
(HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/TUCSON-ARTIFACTS-STORY-OF-PRE-COLUMBIAN-ROMAN-COLONY-VERIFIED-BY-ARCHEOLOGY/)
- ▶ CRACKS IN THE CHEROKEE
(HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/CRACKS-IN-THE-CHEROKEE/)
- ▶ WHAT WOULD IT TAKE? (HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/WHAT-WOULD-IT-TAKE/)
- ▶ ANOMALOUS MITOCHONDRIAL LINEAGES (II)
(HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/ANOMALOUS-MITOCHONDRIAL-LINEAGES-CHEROKEE-PART-TWO/)
- ▶ DO YOU KNOW YOUR EUROPEAN ORIGINS?
(HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/DO-YOU-KNOW-YOUR-EUROPEAN-ORIGINS/)
- ▶ JEWISH DESCENDANTS RETURN TO IBERIAN ROOTS WITH DNA
(HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/JEWISH-DESCENDANTS-RETURN-TO-IBERIAN-ROOTS-WITH-DNA/)
- ▶ ADMIXTURE IN PIMA INCLUDES GREEK AND SARDINIAN
(HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/ADMIXTURE-IN-PIMA-INCLUDES-GREEK-AND-SARDINIAN/)
- ▶ A QUESTION MARK LOOMS OVER ORIGIN OF AMERICAN INDIANS
(HTTPS://DNACONSULTANTS.COM/BIGGER-QUESTION-MARK-LOOMS-OVER-ORIGIN-OF-AMERICAN-INDIANS/)